Contents

Part. I. Drśya. Visual and Performing Arts

Introduction
   Lidia Sudyka........................................................................................................ V

One man and many women: some notes on the harem in mainly ancient and medieval India from sundry perspectives
   David Smith........................................................................................................ 1

Adoption, adaptation, transformation: the Mahiṣamardinī imagery in pre-Kuṣāṇa and Kuṣāṇa art
   Elena Restelli...................................................................................................... 17

Constructing the eternal city of light through history and society: evolution of the image of Kāśi in the 18th - 20th centuries “picture maps”
   Vera Lazzaretti................................................................................................. 35

The Nāṭyaśāstra: the Origin of the Ancient Indian Poetics
   Natalia Lidova.................................................................................................... 61

The Actor’s Social Status and Agency. Fame or Misery?
   Elisa Ganser, Daniele Cuneo............................................................................. 87

Indian Society as Depicted in the Caturbhāṇī and in Mahendra-vikramavarman’s Prahasanas
   Klara Gönc Moačanin...................................................................................... 133
Nuns involving in the affairs of the world. The depiction of Buddhist nuns in Bhavabhūti’s Mālatīmādhava
Danielle Feller ...................................................................................................................... 147

The eightfold gymnastics of mind: preliminary report on the idea and tradition of aṣṭāvadhāna
Lidia Sudyka, Cezary Galewicz.............................................................. 169

Caste in the making, dance in the making
Maria Angelillo .............................................................................................................. 193

The Indian struggle for independence in popular Hindi films of last decade
Tatiana Szurlej................................................................................................. 215

The Bhadralok as Truth-Seeker: Towards a Social History of the Bengali Detective
Gautam Chakrabarti ......................................................................................... 255

Reviews

Muzaffar Alam and Sanjay Subrahmanyam, Writing the Mughal World. Studies on Culture and Politics.
Reviewed by Piotr Borek ........................................................................ 271